aryan, were signed at the State Department yesterday. The addition of these two governments makes a total of six, all of which are Central American countries, which have agreed to the preposed peace treaty.

Mr. Bryan said that discussion of the treaty is proceeding encouragingly with the government of Portugal. He sich chopes that the Dutch government will agree to the proposed treaty, though he has not been advised of the amenuncement yesterday to the effect that Holland is sending to Washington a proposed draft of a peace-treaty, similar to the one proposed by the United States. The situation in the Senate is a great hanger to the efforts of Secretary Bryan to negotiate peace treaties. The Senate has refused to ratify any of the arbitration fresalies renewed last spring and summer. There is an accumulation of treaties unrailled in the Senate, and governments are unwilling to negotiate any further treaties, unless the prospects of the Senate spread improve. Much as the President desires the ratification of these treaties, he is afraid of pressing the matter, lest it interfere with the early passage of the currency bill.
